James F. Reardon's practice focuses on complex international litigation and arbitration, as well as on a variety of regulatory matters, in particular in the fields of competition law and banking and finance. James F. Reardon joined our law firm in 2018.

James F. Reardon is both civil and common law trained and admitted to practise in Geneva, Illinois (inactive status) and Washington, D.C. He holds a Doctor of Laws from the University of Fribourg (magna cum laude); a Juris Doctor from Northwestern University; and a Master (magna cum laude) and Bachelor of Law from the University of Fribourg. He is also an alumnus of the American Swiss Young Leaders by the American Swiss Foundation (2016 Young Leader).

James F. Reardon was previously an associate in a global law firm based in Washington. Prior to moving to the United States, he worked as the Special Assistant to the President of the Swiss Competition Commission, and with a boutique law firm in Geneva, where he worked on a variety of corporate and litigation matters.

James F. Reardon regularly publishes in his fields of work, particularly in antitrust and complex litigation, and also speaks and gives lectures in these areas.

Of both Swiss and U.S. origin, he works in English and French and is fluent in German as well.
